Communication – Future Exhibitions – Future Joint working

This exhibition links aspects of Communication that are central to exhibitions in two museums in Milton Keynes – Bletchley Park and Milton Keynes Museum.

They are joined by 3 other organisations spearheading plans for the development of heritage in Milton Keynes:

- City Discovery Centre – including a library and archive of the New City;
- Living Archive – with a role recording oral history;
- Cowper and Newton Museum – focussing on the writers of the Olney Hymns.

There are over 50 member groups of Milton Keynes Heritage Association with stories to tell.

There are the Libraries in the Centre and in the towns.

There are the Arts Groups that explore ways of conveying information through painting, drama, poetry, music, form and dance.

There are schools and religious groups.

There are those that find it difficult to get their message across.

There are those that shout out but are never heard.

There are things we want to tell but don't know how.

We think Communication needs a little more time and effort and definitely further exhibitions.
