

Milton Keynes Celebrates!

Milton Keynes Museum

The Museum at Christmas

During long December weekends (Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays), the Museum welcomes visitors to celebrate Christmas in a good old-fashioned way.

Father Christmas greets children by the real fire in his cottage immersed among the smells of pine, candle-wax, lamp-oil and wood-smoke.

The butler will welcome older visitors with a warm drink, and something less strong is available for the younger ones. The entertainment in the parlour varies – it might be a choir, piano recital or a recitation.

Hot chestnuts are available, usually from the night-watchman's brazier.

Paper chains, lanterns and cards are among the activities for children in the schoolroom.

We are all in costume and the whole Museum is open for families to enjoy.

We are looking forward to wishing you a Very Happy Christmas.
