Making your own fun at Bletchley Park

You didn't have to be in a club to still have fun at Bletchley even the most mundane of activities could become entertainment.

'Big white geese would frighten the life out of the girls taking a narrow footpath to the huts. They would stand on the bank hissing so the girls always waited until there were a number of men going their way.'
'At night, frogs from the lake would descend onto the drive - being the blackout, one often trod on one.'

'The big thing about the lake was taking the boat out and getting stuck on the island. I was never fortunate enough to be stuck with anyone interesting - just a couple of girls from the office.'

Also ice-skating was a popular activity when the lake froze over.
