

Helmut Jacoby

1926 – 2005

Helmut Jacoby populated the New City of Milton Keynes with people who appeared confident in the public spaces they occupied.

He showed a shopping building made from steel and glass.

He showed the energetic tree planting programme and the sky was always clear, a recurring feature which makes the weather in the future fine.

Helmut Jacoby was an intensely private man. Derek Walker described him as having '...a unique nature – solitary obsessiveness with an international outlook.'

Helmut Jacoby (centre) at a prize giving ceremony in his home town of Halle, Germany

